Dear Colleagues,

We have finished the first decade of the new millennium. The past year was very successful for the journal. The visibility of the journal had been expanded considerably with increased submissions from many countries.

We are entering the new year with many changes. We have changed the manuscript submission system to accommodate the increased needs of the journal. We have switched from the print format to electronic-only to have a paperless environment, and to be more comfortable economically for the continuation of 'no publishing charges' policy.

As the editorial board, we express our deepest gratitude to all authors and the reviewers, who had a great contribution to the journal, and wish you all a happy new year.
